Black Construction Corp. was awarded a $12.4 million contract by Naval Facilities Engineering Command Pacific for the construction of an insulated, pre-engineered, single-story, metal building on Wake Island, according to a Navy news release.

The work includes the construction of a supporting foundation and procurement and installation of a building to serve the Missile Defense. Supporting facilities include an aggregate access road, paving and walkways, information and communication infrastructure, connections to support backup power and anti-terrorism/force protection, the news release stated.

Work is expected to be completed by January 2019.

$40M conference

NAVFAC Pacific also awarded an indefinite-delivery, indefinite-quantity contract with a maximum amount of $40 million to Element Environmental LLC, a Hawaii small business, for architect-engineer services in support of the Navy's Environmental Restoration Program in the Pacific.

The work includes conducting environmental- and safety-related studies at various locations at various Navy and Marine Corps facilities and other government facilities including, but not limited to, Hawaii and Guam, a Navy news release stated.

The expected completion date is September 2022.
