Re: Bill No. 136-35 and Bill No. 128-35

Bills Signed as Companion Measures

I sign these bills as companion measures because I believe they are essential components of a unified economic plan - a plan that values work and gives people the opportunity they need to learn new skills and earn even higher wages.

At a time when too many important issues can be ensnared by partisan politics, these acts, and the legislature's unanimous support for them, demonstrate that we can help working people and partner with businesses to support skilled labor and incentivize its expansion.

Skilled Labor is Vital

Since the start of this administration just ten months ago, approximately 1,000 people have been placed in apprenticeship or pre-apprenticeship programs. The vast majority of these apprenticeships are paid at rates higher than the minimum wage.

Therefore, I am not surprised by the overwhelming support this program received from management and labor alike. Without the legislature's decisive action, the tax credits driving this program, would have ended in weeks - leaving 422 participants and as many as 122 employer sponsors in the cold.

Responsibly Raising the Minimum Wage

And while partnering with businesses to help our neighbors learn a skilled trade is vital, all work deserves the dignity of a decent wage. This is especially true of the lowest wage permissible by law.

I accept that this measure was the subject of passionate debate in this community. But, contrary to popular belief, the minimum wage is earned by not only teens and college students. Many minimum wage workers are single parents who are heads of their households. They are our servers, our hotel housekeepers, our maintenance crews, retail associates, store clerks, kitchen helpers, and much more.

How much should children struggle just because they were born to a single parent making the minimum wage? No parent should have to go through the chronic stress of trying to make ends meet for their family. They should not have to struggle to ensure that their children do not feel disadvantaged.

There Will Always Be Critics

For years now, I have heard a small sector of the business community oppose any upward adjustment in the minimum wage. Their reasons are always the same: massive inflation, job losses, and a reduction in hours worked. But none of these claims were supported by what actually happened after the last increase to the minimum wage, or the Guam-based empirical analysis used to study it.

To be clear, our people believe that everyone has a right to reap the benefits of their success. But the bottom-line can turn a profit and be fair to working people. I know this because I spent years of my life helping entrepreneurs start small businesses, create jobs, and chase their dreams. Like most Americans, our people do not despise the successful because they want their children to succeed.

I signed these bills into law because I believe that work must be rewarded by a decent and fair wage. I also know that skilled labor is a passport to economic security - giving all who hold it the means to support their families.

As proud as we might be of today's successes, our work is not done. It is not done until everyone has the opportunity to win the economic future of their choice, working people can climb their way into the middle class, and those already in the middle class feel safe there.

I look forward to advancing this important work with you and the members of the 35th Guam Legislature.
